

Agnes Martin: The Distillation of Color

May 5 – June 26, 2021
 540 West 25th Street
 New York

“We perceive – we see. We see without eyes and we see without minds. We want to see the truth about life and all of beauty.” – Agnes Martin

Left to right: Agnes Martin, Desert Flower, 1985 © Estate of Agnes Martin /Artists Rights Society (ARS), New York; Portrait of Agnes Martin © Estate of Agnes Martin /Artists Rights Society (ARS), New York

New York – Pace Gallery is pleased to present a monographic exhibition dedicated to the paintings of Agnes Martin, whose work left an indelible mark on the history of modern and contemporary art and has continued to inspire generations of artists. For Martin, painting was defined by an ongoing exploration of its capacity to express a vision of beauty born of intuitive inspiration. Featuring a range of paintings from the 1970s to the early 1990s, from Martin’s multicolored striped works, to compositions of color-washed bands defined by hand-drawn lines, to the deep gray Black Paintings that characterized her work in the late 1980s, this exhibition examines Martin’s attentive use of color in each of these phases. Agnes Martin: The Distillation of Color traces this evolution within the context of Martin’s broadening vision during the latter half of her career—one that crystalized her pursuit of perfection and quest to deepen her understanding of painting’s essence, unattached to emotion or subject, yet radiant and meditative in its pure abstraction.

CEO and President Marc Glimcher says:

“In 1973, Agnes Martin returned from a five-and-a-half year hiatus from art making. Her dedication to rigorous abstraction which sought to isolate platonic truth and essential beauty, had run headlong into the vagaries of the New York art world of that storied decade. The results of her retreat to New Mexico and her self-imposed isolation was a new body of work embracing color, while loosening her adherence to the grid. This joyful reinvention of her process, which is explored with our exhibition in New York, would continue for the next nineteen years. Spent mostly in the hills outside of Galisteo, Martin would refine her quest for beauty through the distillation of color as the paintings moved from pink, yellow and blue to gray and white.”

Martin’s preoccupation with awareness—of herself, the world around her, and painting itself—is evident in the transitions she made in her work in the years following a five-year break from her studio which began in 1967. During this period, Martin left New York permanently, travelled across Canada and the United States, and eventually returned to New Mexico. Reflecting on this time in 1993, she remarked, “Sometimes nature calls you and says, ‘come live with me’. So I decided to experiment with the simple life.” When she returned to painting in 1972 after settling in Galisteo, New Mexico, she began to paint gessoed canvases in pale washes of primary colors, first in vertical bands, and later in horizontal bands. Martin’s pursuit of themes of beauty, happiness, and innocence in her non-objective art during this time was tied to her reverence of the open and expansive landscape that surrounded her. However, rather than depict this beauty through representation, Martin was interested in replicating her profound experience of its quiet solitude through abstract expression.

Beginning in 1980, Martin’s compositions began to feature narrow horizontal bands in trios of primary hues, thinly painted in translucent shades of pink, blue, and yellow. These works, which she sometimes referred to as ‘candy stripe’ paintings, exude Martin’s quest for beauty in the rhythmic presence of undulating color. Other notable series of works during this time feature color field washes in alternating primary pastel colors or tones of single shades that offer the sense of open but defined space within horizontal graphite lines. Exemplifying an expansion in Martin’s approach to color, these works suggest Martin’s interest in new possibilities of perception and experience, toward a purity of expression.

By 1983 Martin returned her focus to gray, distilling an approach to color grounded in the modesty of tonal shades—each a color in its own right. These works capture Martin’s continuous study of the phenomenological capacity of painting, exemplified in the otherworldly sense of light that emerges in each composition. During the late 1980s, Martin began a series of dark gray paintings, which she referred to as her Black Paintings. These works, composed of deep hues of rich and steely gray in variant intensities, are demarcated by contrasting shades of broad and thin bands. In contrast to her pale gray canvases, the Black Paintings convey a preternatural sense of gravity. To create the distinctly flat surfaces of these paintings, Martin mixed each dark gray tone with gesso paint to absorb light, offering a metaphysical sense of space and depth. Martin’s second near decade-long period exploring the subtleties of tone and texture in diaphanous gray and white compositions was only interrupted in 1992 by two multicolor striped paintings, which foreshadow her departure from her gray paintings and return to the exuberance of color that defined her work from 1994 until her death in 2004.

On the occasion of Agnes Martin: The Distillation of Color, Pace Publishing will produce an exhibition catalogue that will feature new editorial contributions by a selection of writers whose cross-genre works span art writing, essay, and memoir. Engaging with the themes of the exhibition, the texts will explore Martin's work and her effect on broader culture through a contemporary perspective. Expanding an approach to Martin's paintings beyond a purely art historical lens, this book will bring new voices into the conversations around her career, inviting a rediscovery of her enduring legacy.

This solo exhibition marks Martin's 28th with Pace since the artist's first presentation with the gallery in 1975. Martin's five-decade long relationship with Pace Founder Arne Glimcher, as both the artist's dealer and friend, was one of mutual admiration and respect and played an instrumental role in Martin's lifetime. Agnes Martin: Paintings, Writings, Remembrances—a beautiful collection of the artist's most important art works by Arne Glimcher is being reprinted by Phaidon and will be released in September 2021. The book, originally published in 2012, includes Martin's writings on her philosophies on art and on the themes of life that inspire her paintings alongside an introduction by Glimcher and notes on visits he made to Martin's studio and home in New Mexico.

Agnes Martin (b. 1912, Macklin, Saskatchewan, Canada; d. 2004, Taos, New Mexico) was one of the most influential painters of her generation. Growing up in western Canada, she moved between New Mexico and New York throughout her early career. For a pivotal decade starting in 1957, Martin lived and worked in Coenties Slip, a neighborhood in lower Manhattan she shared with emerging artists including Ellsworth Kelly, before returning to New Mexico in 1968. Inspired by the transcendent qualities of paintings by Mark Rothko and Ad Reinhardt, Martin considered herself to be an Abstract Expressionist. Nonetheless, her oeuvre played a critical role in heralding the advent of Minimalism, influencing, among others, Eva Hesse's sculptural practice and Sol LeWitt's wall drawings. Characterized by austere lines and grids superimposed upon muted grounds of color, Martin's paintings elegantly negotiate the confines of structure and space, draftsmanship, and the metaphysical.

Pace is a leading international art gallery representing some of the most influential contemporary artists and estates from the past century, holding decades-long relationships with Alexander Calder, Jean Dubuffet, Barbara Hepworth, Agnes Martin, Louise Nevelson, and Mark Rothko. Pace enjoys a unique U.S. heritage spanning East and West coasts through its early support of artists central to the Abstract Expressionist and Light and Space movements.

Since its founding by Arne Glimcher in 1960, Pace has developed a distinguished legacy as an artist-first gallery that mounts seminal historical and contemporary exhibitions. Under the current leadership of President and CEO Marc Glimcher, Pace continues to support its artists and share their visionary work with audiences worldwide by remaining at the forefront of innovation. Now in its seventh decade, the gallery advances its mission through a robust global program—comprising exhibitions, artist projects, public installations, institutional collaborations, performances, and interdisciplinary projects. Pace has a legacy in art bookmaking and has published over five hundred titles in close collaboration with artists, with a focus on original scholarship and on introducing new voices to the art historical canon. The gallery has also spearheaded exploration into the intersection of art and technology through new business models, exhibition interpretation tools, and representation of artists engaging with technology.

Today, Pace has nine locations worldwide including London, Geneva, a strong foothold in Palo Alto, and two galleries in New York—its headquarters at 540 West 25th Street, which welcomed almost 120,000 visitors and programmed 20 shows in its first six months and an adjacent 8,000 sq. ft. exhibition space at 510 West 25th Street. Pace was one of the first international galleries to establish outposts in Asia, where it operates permanent gallery spaces in Hong Kong and Seoul, as well as an office and viewing room in Beijing. In 2020, Pace opened temporary exhibition spaces in East Hampton and Palm Beach, with continued programming on a seasonal basis. In fall 2021, Pace will continue to expand its European presence with the opening of a larger gallery space in London.

Press Inquiries

Adriana Elgarresta
Director of Public Relations
aelgarresta@pacegallery.com
+1 305 498 1649

Claire Hurley
Senior Public Relations Associate
churley@pacegallery.com
+1 703 901 1960

Sadie Dame
Public Relations Associate
sfong-dame@pacegallery.com
+1 717 412 8473

Follow Pace Gallery

 @pacegallery
 @pacegallery
 @pacegallery